The Fifth G. Rainey Williams Surgical Symposium honors Dr. Williams as he enters his 18th year as Professor and Chairman of the Department of Surgery at the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center. This spring, Dr. Williams received two additional honors in his long and distinguished medical career. In April, he was named the Stanton L. Young Master Teacher, which is accompanied by one of the nation’s largest awards for excellence in medical teaching. In May, he was inducted into The Johns Hopkins Society of Scholars, an organization of former postdoctoral fellows and faculty at The Johns Hopkins University who have gained distinction in their careers.

This year the Symposium will focus on current concepts in pancreaticobiliary malignancies, liver malignancies, breast cancer, esophageal disease, trauma and vascular problems. For the first time, a special cardiothoracic session will take place on Thursday afternoon at The Waterford Hotel. Case presentations with discussion sessions will allow for interaction between the Symposium participants and the guest faculty. Once again, Saturday morning will be designated as an opportunity to examine the socioeconomic issues facing surgeons today.

The headquarters will be at The Waterford Hotel and transportation will be provided to and from the hotel when the scientific sessions are scheduled at the Health Sciences Center. The annual meetings of the Oklahoma Chapter of the American College of Surgeons and the University of Oklahoma Surgical Society will be held in conjunction with the Symposium this year. The Oklahoma Chapter of the American College of Surgeons will have a luncheon and business meeting at noon on Friday at the Waterford. The University of Oklahoma Surgical Society will have a breakfast and business meeting on Saturday morning at The Waterford.

The guest faculty are highly distinguished, internationally recognized surgeons. The Symposium should provide an excellent forum for the scientific interchange of ideas, as well as an opportunity for surgeons with ties to the University of Oklahoma to return to the campus.
